Audio/radio content:

We are looking for additional audio content that could sit across bank holidays, traditional holidays or throughout our summer schedule in July and August or form podcasts. We welcome one-off programmes but you may find that a series could provide the benefit of economy of scale.

We are looking for additional content to complement our existing radio and digital output.

This means that we are not looking for a magazine style programme as this is well served by our current primary daily output in our flagship magazine programme, Blas. It also means that we are not looking for any music series at the moment as our weekend output covers these areas with Blas Ceoil and Caschlár and it is an area well served throughout our summer schedule. See bbc.co.uk/gaeilge for all our current radio output and genres.

We would however welcome new comedy, drama, documentaries and in particular output for junior listeners and their families.

We would also welcome co-productions where appropriate.

Slot duration: 27mins (currently follows the BBC Radio Ulster News at 19:00)

Slots: Required as alternative output to Blas on weeknights, Monday to Thursday

Slot season: July & August (10 x 27' slots minimum); local bank holidays (one-offs); Easter (4 x 27' slots), Christmas holiday period (8 x 27' slot)

Indicative tariff:

Documentaries: £3,000 to £6,000 (this tariff can be applied to educational output also)

Scripted Comedy and Drama £6,000 to £10,000

Comedy and Comedy Panel programmes £4,000 to £6,000

While we would prefer innovative content, we will also consider content which would complement our special annual broadcasting blocks for radio during Seachtain na Gaeilge (first half of March yearly), Oireachtas na Gaeilge (end of October yearly) or some of the key dates mentioned above or non-time specific.
